

BARRY DAVIS

writer . producer . director

PROFILE

I began my career as an editor, specializing in long format news magazine pieces and documentary series while expanding my role with forays into broadcast design where I created the visual effects for award winning network promos.

Eventually, as a producer and field director on several adventure travel series, I was able to adapt my post production skills to working on location. I produced multicam sports features and live events while shepherding them from pitch document to colour correct and final mx.

Originally tapped to produce factual TV series for domestic and international markets I have since produced everything from prime time music specials and hidden camera comedy to competition reality formats and doc soaps. With each project I endeavor to deliver a spectacle unlike anything audiences have seen before and my work has been honored with screen awards at home and abroad.

Recently much of my work has been creating formats that have been sold to international markets where foreign teams replicated our recipe. Producing their own compelling content born from our pitch meetings, casting sessions, rehearsals and reedits to create the most compelling content for fans worldwide.
